YourTeacher.com Signs Agreement to Provide Online Math Instruction through the WeAreTeachers Community Marketplace

Teachers to have an opportunity to recommend YourTeacher.com's online math instruction and receive remuneration through WeAreTeachers.

Austin, TX - YourTeacher.com has signed an agreement with WeAreTeachers to provide online math instruction through the WeAreTeachers community marketplace. Starting in the Fall of 2007, teachers will be able to recommend YourTeacher.com's instructional math programs to students and receive remuneration through the WeAreTeachers marketplace.

WeAreTeachers is a new online teaching, learning, and business network designed to change the profession and business of teaching. Teachers who want to become expert 'recommenders' of commercially developed content and products can profitably participate in the first teacher-driven marketplace. Starting in the Fall of 2007, teachers will be able to recommend YourTeacher.com's online math instruction directly to students through the WeAreTeachers marketplace.

According to Sandy Fivecoat of WeAreTeachers, "We are delighted to partner with YourTeacher.com as a business affiliate member of the WeAreTeachers network. The outstanding mathematics content from YourTeacher.com, and the innovative, video-based presentation, is an excellent example of the kind of quality content we will support on this network."

According to Charles Hermes, CEO of YourTeacher.com, "We are extremely excited to get a chance to work directly with teachers who clearly understand how much help students need in math. We think that our online math instruction will be a popular solution for many students and teachers."
